

Reply

J. A. BUSINGER

National Center for Atmospheric Research, Boulder, CO 80307*

19 November 1986

I suggest that Dr. Leahey read Corsin's (1974) article more carefully. He explores when the gradient method can be applied and when it is invalid. He does not state that the method is wrong in principle, but stresses that it has limited applicability.

REFERENCES

* The National Center for Atmospheric Research is sponsored by the National Science Foundation.

Corsin, S., 1974: Limitations of gradient transport models in random walks and in turbulence. Adv. Geophys., 18A, 25-69.