AIMS.

The objects of this Society are: The advancement and diffusion of knowledge of meteorology, including climatology; and the development of its application to public health, agriculture, engineering, transportation by land and inland waterways, navigation of the air and oceans, and other forms of industry and commerce.—CONSTITUTION, ARTICLE II.

MEMBERSHIP DUES AND PRIVILEGES.

Membership dues are one dollar or more per year. Those paying $5 to $20 are classed as Contributing Members; those paying $20 to $100 are classed as Sustaining Members, and those paying $100 or more are classed as Patrons. Life membership in any of the classes are at twenty times the annual dues for the class. For special provisions as to corporation memberships, consult the chairman of the Committee on Corporation Memberships. All members receive the BULLETIN of the Society, and those paying $5, or more, the Monthly Weather Review as well. Consultation with the various committees is open to all. All members have equal voting privileges.

EXTRA COPIES OF THE BULLETIN.

Several hundred extra copies of the BULLETIN are printed monthly and may be had at 10 cents each on application to the Publisher. Subscriptions are $1 a year.

CORRECTION

Sept. BULLETIN, p. 104; Committee on Public Information—A. Russell Bond is a member instead of J. Malcolm Bird, as printed; Committee on Aeronautical Meteorology—"V. G. Coffin should have been "J. G. Coffin."
