

Weather Review subscriptions for contributing and sustaining members $60, and miscellaneous expenses about $60. The $20 balance is faced with a liability of $60 more for Monthly Weather Review subscriptions, and $85 and $95 for the February and March BULLETINS, respectively. At the rate dues have been coming in, the further receipts should be enough to cover these bills when rendered.

It is obvious that the continued publication of the BULLETIN will be largely dependent on the staying qualities and generosity of the 500 who have not yet paid dues for 1921. The Society will get more for the money if dues are paid now rather than after it has been to the trouble and expense of sending an individual bill. Unless there is enough money on hand by the middle of April to carry the BULLETIN through the year on a 16-page basis, a vote will be taken at the Washington meeting on April 20 on raising the dues to $2 a year. What is the answer? Say it with checks and money orders!

The Address of the Treasurer, Mr. Robert E. Horton, is R. D. No. 1, Voorheesville, N. Y.

NOTICE.

The January and February BULLETINS were sent only, to those members in full standing 1921, to those who in 1920 paid more than $1 dues, and to all fellows of the Society. The March BULLETIN goes to all fellows and members. The April and subsequent BULLETINS will be sent only to those in full standing, i. e., those who have paid their dues for 1921.

WASHINGTON MEETING APRIL 20-21, 1921.

On account of a change in the program of the American section of the International Geophysical Union, the date of the meeting of the American Meteorological Society has been changed from the 18th to the evening of the 20th and the morning of the 21st. The evening session will open at 8.10 P.M. and the morning session at 9.30 A.M. Both will be held at the U. S. Weather Bureau, 24th and M Sts., Washington, D. C., unless the attendance is too large for the limited space in the Bureau. Those planning to come to the meeting will confer a favor by notifying the Secretary (address, Weather Bureau, Washington, D. C.). The program will be published in the April issue of the BULLETIN, which will probably be in the mails by the 10th.
