

Reply

JAMES K. ANGELL AND J. KORSHOVER

Environmental Research Laboratories, NOAA, Silver Spring, Md. 20910

12 January 1976

Dr. Winston's point is worth emphasizing. In this paper we did not intend to become involved in energy considerations and regret that, by averaging the seasonal values of sunshine duration (Fig. 7), we may inadvertently have done so. The decrease in sunshine duration after 1964 does not necessarily imply a decrease in the solar energy reaching the earth's surface.